PRISONER COMMITTS SUICIDE

Deserted by Friends He Became Despondent and Ended Life

LEAVES NOTE FOR WIFE

Strip of Canvas From Mattress was Used for a Rope and With One End Fastened to Bars of Cell Was Means of Deed

Desertion by his friends during his hour of need caused Mike Frank to commit suicide by hanging himself to the bars of his cell in the county jail Sunday night about 8 o'clock. A note which he must have penned just before taking his life, was found and explained his reasons for the deed. Several times in the note he besought his wife not to forget their "babies" and prayed that God might forgive him his rash act.

The note which was addressed to his wife was scribbled in a shaky and uncertain hand on a little scrap of paper. The sentences were jerky and lacked coherence. It was written in Austrian. The following is a literal translation of the note which spells a tragedy for a wife and five small children who reside on the West Side:

"Dear Mary—You must care for the babies—don't forget them—it is hard for me to leave them. There is no more life for me. I wait for someone to come and see me or take me out of jail but no one come—there is no one who cares for me. I ask that you excuse me if I do something wrong to you. Please don't forget the babies—don't forget them. I have waited long and no one came to help me. May God excuse me and you too. I ask you again, please don't forget the babies. I do not care where they bury me. Goodbye."

The note was unsigned but there was no question but that Frank wrote it.

That Frank carefully planned the deed there is not the slightest question. For some little time he evidently was unable to find any means of taking his life.

Then a thought struck him and when he ate his dinner, he kept one of the tin spoons. He broke off the bowl part and whetting the jagged edge on the bars of his and upon the floor, he fashioned it into a crude knife. With this he was able to tear off a strip of heavy canvas of which his mattress was made. He did this so carefully that no one should hear him and intercept his plans of self destruction.

Climbing upon his bunk he tied the heavy piece of canvas to the top bar of the door. The other end he knotted about his neck, tying it securely. It was necessary only to step from the bunk and the deed was done.

It was at least a half hour later before Frank's lifeless body was discovered. One of the other prisoners stepped toward the other end of the room to get a drink of water and happening to glance into the cell which Frank occupied he noticed his body hanging. He notified Sheriff Green at once and the body was cut down. Dr. Brown was summoned but it was found that life was extinct. The body was removed to the Conrad and Hart undertaking rooms where the inquest was held.

Frank had been bound over to the grand jury on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder on the person of C. F. Blackmer, assistant superintendent of the American Steel and Wire company.

At the trial it was shown that Frank had asked the wiremill official for a position and when he was refused he was crossing the field from the mill to the street car line. He made a lunge at Mr. Blackmer with a knife and only the fact that the victim leaped back saved his life as the knife slashed a hole in his coat and passed between his arm and his body.

Putting the Garters On.
Mrs. Brown was preserving peaches in the kitchen amid an array of glass jars, covers, rubber bands, etc. Margaret, aged four, watched the process quietly until the fruit was in the jars and the covers ready, then she exclaimed, "Oh, mother, please let me put the garters on!"

PICTURE LEAD TO ARREST

Photos of Boys on Horses in Lake Hotel Gives Owner Clue

A photograph of two alleged boy horse thieves on their stolen mounts led to the arrest in the Kingsley hotel at Pistakee Bay, Ill., Tuesday by Peter Prosel, 4740 North Clark Street, proprietor of a livery stable.

The boys who are also alleged to have robbed a Greek peddler of a small sum of money, when brought back to Chicago Tuesday night by Prosel, gave the names of Charles Lehman, 1655 North Artesian avenue and Barney B. Busse, 1847 North Maplewood avenue. Each is 14 years old.

According to the police, the boys stole the money from the wagon of Michael and George Lantz, North Rockwell street and West North avenue, Chicago Saturday evening.

The boys say they gave the bag to Gug St. Pierre, a friend living near the Leeman home and he gave them $25—a small portion of the contents of the bag. With this money they went to a livery stable Sunday and each rented a saddle horse valued at $100.

The boys rode away and failed to return.

Prosel had to go to the Kingsley hotel to transact some business Monday and the first thing that caught his attention was a photograph of the two boys mounted on the horses.

The picture had been left by Lehman on a table in the parlor of the hotel.

From A. H. Kingsley, owner of the hotel, Prosel learned that the boys arrived early that morning and he found them in their room asleep. Tuesday he took them back with him and turned them over to the police of the Des-Plaines street station.

Lehman had left $17 with Kingsley and on being questioned as to where he obtained this money, he is alleged to have admitted the theft of the money bag from the wagon while the owner was in a restaurant.

The boys will be turned over to the juvenile court authorities. They said they were on their way to a farm in Wisconsin where they intended to spend the remainder of the summer.

DEATH OF MRS. MARGARET STEELE OF WAUKEGAN

While reading a letter which her son Nelson had just handed her, Mrs. Margaret Steele, Waukegan's richest person, the widow of Charles R. Steele, pioneer banker and merchant of Waukegan, passed quietly away in her room in the Steele residence, Grand avenue and Sheridan road, Aug. 2, about 3:30 o'clock. Her life went out as she had lived—quietly, peacefully and without any emotion to indicate pain. She passed away as she had always hoped she would—just as her strength had begun to fail to such an extent that she was proving helpless. For years she had always said she trusted she would never become helpless; that she would be called upon to leave this being before she reached that stage.

Had she lived until Sept. 13, next she would have been 90 years old. Up to about six weeks ago she had been able to help herself at all times, being able even to go up and down stairs alone, despite her age. About that time, however, she began to fall and a trained nurse has been in attendance since. Ten days ago, Mrs. Steele was placed in a wheel chair and while her condition did not fail fast, it was apparent that she was reaching the stage in life where the end could not be far distant owing to her advanced age.

ENTERTAINS IN HONOR OF HER BIRTHDAY

Miss Helen Burke entertained about twenty-seven of her high school classmates at a party at her home south of town Monday afternoon, that day being her sixteenth birthday. The hay rack ride to and from her home was not by any means the least enjoyable feature of the affair. The afternoon was spent in games and the entire company was treated to an auto ride.

About six o'clock a bounteous supper was served after which more games were indulged in until later in the evening.

The hostess was the recipient of a number of pretty and useful gifts. Among the guests were also the Misses Walker of Waukegan, cousins of the hostess.

FOX LAKE NAVIGATABLE WATERS

Secretary of War Issues Orders to Effect that Fox
Lake is Navigatable

ORDER ISSUED JULY 27TH

Deputy Collector of the Port at Waukegan Given Instructions to Warn
Motor Boat Owners

The recent motor boat accident in which seven people lost their lives has been the means of causing the secretary of war to issue an order to the effect that Fox lake constitutes navigable waters of the United States, and consequently is under federal jurisdiction.

The collector of customs, received a letter from the Secretary of Commerce and Labor on August 2nd, inclosing a copy of a letter dated the 27th, ultimo from the acting secretary of war, to this effect, and consequently has taken the necessary steps to bring to the attention of motor boat owners the requirements of the navigation laws.

Boats plying on Fox Lake, Channel Lake, Lake Catherine, Lake Marie, Grass Lake, Bluff Lake and Pistakee Lake and in fact, every body of water that forms a tributary of the Fox river is held to be navigatable water and therefore is under federal jurisdiction.

Mr. McArthur made a special trip to Fox Lake Sunday and saw some of the excursion boat owners. He advised them of the ruling of the secretary of war and has allotted each boat owner a stipulated time to equip his boat in accordance with the law.

All motor boats operated on this chain of lakes shall: First—All motor boats carrying passengers for hire shall carry one life preserver of the sort prescribed by the regulations of the board of supervising inspectors for every passenger carried and no such boat while so carrying passengers for hire shall be operated or navigated except in charge of persons duly licensed for such service by the board of inspectors.

Second—Every motor boat not carrying passengers for hire must have life preservers, or life belts or buoyant cushions or ring buoys or other device, to be prescribed by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, sufficient to sustain afloat every person on board.

Third—Every motor boat shall carry ready for immediate use the means of promptly and effectually extinguishing burning gasoline.

Fourth—A fine not exceeding $100 may be imposed for any violation of this act. The motor boat shall be liable for the said penalty and may be seized and proceeded against by any way of libel, in the District court of the United States for any district within which such motor boat may be found.

That Fox river constitutes a highway over which commerce is, or may be carried on with other states in the customary means in which such commerce is conducted by water, is shown by the fact that lumber is being towed down the river from Wisconsin points to points in Lake county. Commerce may be carried on with Wisconsin. This does not mean necessarily, that the waters are capable of being navigated by large boats, but by even the smallest motor boats.

When the government granted a permit for the construction of a dam in the Fox river below McHenry, they were compelled to put in a lock of sufficient size to care for boats that were being used at the present time. The size of the lock is sixty-five feet and seven inches in length, fourteen feet and seven inches beam and at the present high stage of water there is seven feet over the sills. This enables motor boats drawing six feet of water to run from Wilmet, Wis., to Algonquin, Ill., a distance of forty-eight miles. Freight and passengers are carried between the two places. Small motor boats can make a portage around the dam at Wilmet and a low stage of water run within two miles of Burlington, Wis.

NEW BELL BLESSED SUNDAY

Very Rev. J. P. O'Mahoney
Assisted by Father Heller
Officiated

LARGE CROWD PRESENT

Music for the Occasion Was Furnished by Chicago Parties All of whom are Artists in that line

Just as the clock was striking the hour of five last Sunday afternoon the new bell at St. Peter's Catholic church rang out its first message to the people of the community.

A large crowd which numbered between seven and eight hundred gathered to witness the impressive ceremony of the unveiling, baptism and blessing of the new bell which was performed by Very Rev. Dr. John P. O'Mahoney, C. S. V., President of St. Viator's College, Kankakee, Ill., delegate of His Grace, The Archbishop of Chicago, assisted by Rev. Father Heller of Bristol.

The draperies of white and gold blending with the red white and blue of the American flag, hung by a professional decorator, in the employ of Marshal Field, transformed the place into a bower of glory and at exactly a quarter of four twelve little girls all clad in white, to soft strains of music rendered by Miss Emma M. Zellinger, ascended the steps and removed the veil, a United States flag.

Father O'Mahoney then proceeded with the ceremony of baptism with Thomas Donnelly and Paul Wenigman as sponsors. During the religious ceremony of the blessing, vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Mary Halpin O'Brien, contralto, Miss May M. Farrell, soprano, Rev. E. L. Rivard, C. S. V., tenor, and Rev. J. J. Corbett, C. S. V., bass. Miss Zellinger acting as accompanist.

Dr. O'Mahoney, who is an orator of rare ability, held the undivided attention of the entire audience as he delivered the dedication address, at the close of which he spoke of the generosity of Dr. Charles Venn of Chicago, in the donation of the bell to St. Peter's church.

The ceremonies ended with the peeling of the bell, Father O'Mahoney and Messrs. Donnelly and Wenigman being the first to bring forth its tones, the privilege then extending to any one who wished the honor.

McHENRY CO. IS LEADER IN CATTLE RAISING

According to Geo. W. Coon, Jr., who edits the farm department of the Woodstock Sentinel, McHenry leads the state of Illinois in the dairy industry and the raising of cattle, ranks second in the growing of alfalfa and with one exception has the largest proportional value in farm buildings of any county in the state.

McHenry county has more cattle than any other county in the state of Illinois regardless of the fact that many other counties have two and three times the area of that county. It has 40 per cent more cattle of all descriptions than any other county and 25 per cent more dairy cows. It has or did have, according to the census of 1910, 77,977 cattle of all classes and 50,726

ROOSEVELT AND JOHNSON NOMINATED BY PROGRESSIVES

Roosevelt and Johnson—this is the national ticket of the progressive party.

The platform on which they will stand is hewn from the doctrines enunciated in the colonel's "confession of faith." Both candidates were nominated by acclamation at the Coliseum early Wednesday night. While the delegates shouted in wild jubilation, varying the yells and shrieks by singing, "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," the nominees made a triumphal entry to the hall. In brief speeches they accepted the nominations—a new department in national conventions—after which the delegates sang the "Doxology" in a thundering chant and after listening to a benediction, adjourned sine die at 7:24 p. m.

CATHOLIC CHURCH BAZAR

Those who will Have Charge Augers
Success for Undertaking

The Bazaar given by St. Peter's Catholic church at the Antioch opera house the week beginning Aug. 19 and ending Aug. 24, promises to be a great success. Plan to attend.

The parish booths as well as the refreshments will in be charge of Mrs. Harry Kelley and Mrs. Wm. Dupre.

Following are some of the patronesses of the bazaar: Pistakee Lake, Mesdames. A. T. Street, David Cummings, Jr. Fox Lake, Mesdames. Matt Benner, E. C. Howard, J. G. Browne, J. H. Uhler, W. McDowd, W. J. Brinkman, Judge O. Donahue, M. C. Conlan, J. Graur, W. T. Maypole, J. Croke, Wm. Glader, A. S. Thane, D. Cushing, J. L. Shaw.

Lake Villa, Mesdames. T. N. Donnelly, Ben Dicks, P. Grady, Thos. Dawson, J. W. Renchlin, R. Bolger. Channel Lake, Mesdames. J. J. O'Heron, M. Walsh, Geo. Mason, Jas. Gleason, A. Sullivan.

Long Lake, Mesdames. J. Denver, W. Clare, J. Caughlin, J. Elwis, J. W. Henneberry and Misses Mitchell, Stanton, Graham and Walsh.

Lake Marie, Mesdames. G. W. Shepard, Paul Jonhke, (Louise Venn), W. J. Heiderman, Judge R. E. Burke, W. Gnaedinger, G. T. Short, J. F. Bower, A. E. Allen, W. Umbach, Paul Wenigman.

Lake Marie will as in former years have a large representation present and their rival this year will probably be Lake Villa. It is expected to have 12 distinct booths. Particulars of these will be given later. The entertainment given at the bazaar will surpass all former efforts in that line. Dancing every evening.

MADISON COUNTY GETS INSANE ASYLUM

Lake county has lost its fight to land the new state asylum which Senator Olson and others worked so hard to secure it.

Madison county has been decided upon as the site, a telegram today from Springfield reading:

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 7.—The state board of administration today decided to locate the new state hospital for the insane, authorized by act of the Forty-seventh General Assembly, in Madison county, near the city of Alton. The exact site of the new building is yet to be determined by the board. Seventy-eight cities were considered, Madison county being finally selected on the eighth ballot. The sum of $500,000 has already been appropriated for the purchase of not less than 1,000 acres of land and the preparation of plans. The ultimate investment is expected to total $1,500,000.

It had been felt that the chances of the asylum being located just north of Springfield were very good as the special committee had shown much favor to the site when it visited there. However, it seems this was not so, for Madison seems to have landed it.

ARE NOT IN FAVOR OF ANNEXATION

The citizens of Highwood are dead opposed to any movement toward annexation with Highland Park and assert that any effort along this line will be fought bitterly. Their statement is in response to declared efforts on the part of many residents of Highland Park to annex Highwood and combine them into one city.

It is admitted that years ago a similar effort was made and residents of Highwood were in favor of it because they thought that it would be for their best interests. Highland Park, however, was opposed to the move at that time because the Highwood resorts gave the city rather a bad name. Highwood was rather deeply in debt at that time although Highland Park's indebtedness was about the same.

Now, however, Highwood residents assert that the tables have been turned. It is claimed that while Highwood is practically out of debt, excepting about $1,425 that Highland Park is quite deeply in debt and at present is seeking to levy $175,000 through a bond issue more than they are able to do. Highwood residents say that Highland Park people are more than willing to annex Highwood now so that the people of the latter city can help to pay this big debt.

SECOND MURDER MYSTERY

Finding of Body of Babe Floating Near Highland Park
Causes Sensation

BATHER MAKES DISCOVERY

Rope About Infant's Neck Was Evidently Attached to a Weight Which Loosened and Permitted Body to Rise

The finding of a second dead body of a new born babe in the lake within less than a week has caused residents of the aristocratic north shore to sit up and take notice and wonder what has struck the community.

Tuesday morning of last week a new-born babe, wrapped up in heavy paper, was found at the lake shore at Lake Forest.

Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock a new-born babe was found in the lake but a short distance from shore at Highland Park, a small rope about the infant's neck, proving that it had been murdered by being thrown into the water, probably off the breakwater and drowned.

While the Lake Forest discovery roused the people there, it did not stir them up like the Highland Park affair because of the fact that in the former case the babe might have died a natural death, but in the Highland Park case, it is apparent that murder was committed, or why would the rope have been about the babe's neck.

The body was found by a young boy who was in bathing near the pier at the south limits of Highland Park, about opposite Ravinia Park entrance. The lad was wading near the pier when he saw a bundle floating, being bumped by the waves against the pier. Going closer, he felt of it, and taking hold and seeing that an old apron covered some object he looked a little closer. Then he thought for a minute that it was a doll which the cloth contained. Looking still closer he saw that it was a baby boy.

The lad then took the string and tied it to the pier, hastening to shore where later, he incidentally mentioned his find and told what he had done with it. Word then spread from mouth to mouth until finally, about two hours later, officials heard of it and the remains were brought to shore by Undertaker Prior, who had been notified. The body was taken to his morgue where an inquest was called for 4 o'clock.

The apron or part of the dress which the tiny babe was found, was a good material, but of course, was nothing to indicate to whom belonged. There were no mark-kind on the cloth and as the had never been clothed, there was nothing to furnish the least clue as to the identity of the persons who doted it.

Officials at Highland Park they believed the baby had water about a week.

The finding of the body is the first case of murder in the community has had in many years. While the victim of this one was a mere babe, it was a human being, hence interest is keen. Indignation runs high.

The general belief is that the body was thrown into the lake off the pier near which it was found, that a rope was attached to its neck with some sort of a weight at the other end; that the weight worked its way off the rope and thus finally permitted the body to come to the surface. The rope attached to the child's neck was about five feet long and plenty strong enough to hold a grown person, if bent upon hanging himself. The noose about the neck was not loose but the swelling of the body may have tightened it. The coroner's jury may be able to determine whether the child died from drowning or whether it was first murdered and then thrown into the lake to cover up the crime.

BURNING DAYLIGHT

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sleds, telling his friends that he will be found in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco where he meets his fate in Dede Mason, a pretty stenographer. He makes large investments and gets into the political ring. For a rest he goes to the country. Daylight gets deeper into his finance in San Francisco, but often the longing for the simple life nearly overcomes him. Dede Mason buys a horse and Daylight meets her in her saddle trips. One day he asks Dede to go with him on one more ride, his purpose being to ask her to marry him and they canter away, she trying to analyze her feelings. Dede tells Daylight that her happiness could not lie with a money manipulator. Daylight undertakes to build up a great industrial community. He is insistent that she marry him and yet hopes to win her. Daylight falls back into his old drinking ways. There is a flurry in the money market, but Daylight tells Dede that he is going to work on a ranch and prove to her that he has reformed. Dede and Daylight are married at a little backwoods hotel. He has come back to wholesome, natural life, and they go to house-keeping in a spot close to nature.

CHAPTER XXI.

But there came the day, one year, in early April, when Dede sat in an easy chair on the porch, sewing on certain small garments, while Daylight read aloud to her. It was in the afternoon, and a bright sun was shining down on a world of new green. Along the irrigation channels of the vegetable garden streams of water were flowing, and now and again Daylight broke off from his reading to run out and change the flow of water. Also, he was teasingly interested in the certain small garments on which Dede worked, while she was radiant, happy over them, though at times, when his tender fun was too insistent, she was rosy confused or affectionately resentful. It was a few minutes later that Daylight, breaking off from his reading to change the streams of irrigation, found that the water had ceased flowing. He shouldered a pick and shovel, took a hammer and a pipe-wrench from the tool-house, and returned to Dede on the porch.

"I reckon I'll have to go down and dig the pipe out," he told her. "It's that slide that's threatened all winter. I guess she's come down at last."

"Don't you read ahead, now," he warned, as he passed around the house and took the trail that led down the wall of the canyon.

Halfway down the trail, he came upon the slide. It was a small affair, only a few tons of earth and crumbling rock; but, starting from fifty feet above, it had struck the water with force sufficient to break it into connection. Before proceeding to work, he glanced up the path of the slide, and he saw what made his countenance pale and cease for the moment from questioning further.

"No," he murmured aloud, "look here."

The fissure vein, or I never saw the like, he proclaimed softly.

Dropping the hammer and pipe-wrench, but retaining pick and shovel, he climbed up the slide to where a vague line of out-jutting but mostly soil-covered rock could be seen. It was all but indiscernible, but his practiced eye had sketched the hidden information which it signified. Here and there, along this wall of the vein, he attacked the crumbling rock with the pick and shoveled the encumbering soil away. Several times he examined this rock. So soft was some of it that he could break it in his fingers. Shifting a dozen feet higher up, he again attacked with pick and shovel. And this time, when he rubbed the soil from a chunk of rock and looked, he straightened up suddenly, gasping with delight. And then, like a deer at a drinking pool in fear of its enemies, he flung a quick glance around to see if any eye were gazing upon him. He grinned at his own foolishness and returned to his examination of the chunk. A slant of sunlight fell on it, and it was all aglitter with tiny specks of unmistakable free gold.

"From the grass roots down," he muttered in an awe-stricken voice, as he swung his pick into the yielding surface.

Sometimes he started small slides of earth that covered up his work and compelled him to dig again. Once he was swept fifty feet down the canyon-side; but he floundered and scrambled up again without pausing for breath. He hit upon quartz that was so rotten that it was almost like clay, and here the gold was richer than ever. It was a veritable treasure chamber. For a hundred feet up and down he traced the walls of the vein. He even climbed over the canyon-top to look along the brow of the hill for signs of the outcrop. But that could wait, and he hurried back to his find.

He toiled on in the same mad haste, until exhaustion and an intolerable ache in his back compelled him to pause. He straightened up with even a richer piece of gold-laden quartz. Stopping, the sweat from his forehead had fallen to the ground. It now ran into his eyes, blinding him. He wiped it from him with the back of his hand and returned to a scrutiny of the gold. It would run thirty thousand to the ton, fifty thousand, anything—he knew that. And as he gazed upon the yellow lure, and panted for air, and wiped the sweat away, his quick vision leaped and set to work. He saw the spur-track that must run up from the valley and across the upland pastures, and he ran the grades and built the bridge that would span the canyon, until it was real before his eyes. Across the canyon was the place for the mill, and there he erected it; and he erected, also, the endless chain of buckets, suspended from a cable and operated by gravity, that would cross the canyon to the quartz-crusher. Likewise, the whole mine grew before him and beneath him—tunnels, shafts, and galleries, and hoisting plants. The blasts of the miners were in his ears, and from across the canyon he heard the roar of the stamps. The hand that held the lump of quartz was trembling, and there was a tired, nervous palpitation apparently in the pit of his stomach. It came to him abruptly that what he wanted was a drink—whisky, cocktails, anything, a drink. And even then, with this new hot yearning for the alcohol upon him, he heard, faint and far, drifting down the green abyss of the canyon, Dede's voice, crying:—

"Here, chick, chick, chick, chick, chick! Here, chick, chick, chick!"

He was astounded at the lapse of time. She had left her sewing on the porch and was feeding the chickens preparatory to getting supper. The afternoon was gone. He could not conceive that he had been away that long.

Again came the call: "Here, chick, chick, chick, chick, chick! Here, chick, chick, chick!"

It was the way she always called—first five, and then three. He had long since noticed it. And from these thoughts of her arose other thoughts that caused a great fear slowly to grow in his face. For it seemed to him that he had almost lost her. Not once had he thought of her in those frenzied hours, and for that much, at least, had she truly been lost to him. He dropped the piece of quartz, slid down the slide, and started up the trail, running heavily. At the edge of the clearing he ceased down and almost crept to a point of vantage whence he could peer out, himself unseen. She was feeding the chickens, tossing to them handfuls of grain and laughing at their antics.

The sight of her seemed to relieve the panic fear into which he had been flung, and he turned and ran back down the trail. Again he climbed the slide, but this time he climbed higher, carrying the pick and shovel with him. And again he toiled frenziedly, but this time with a different purpose. He worked artfully, losing slide after slide of the red soil and sending it streaming down and covering up all he had uncovered, hiding from the light of day the treasure he had discovered. He even went into the woods and scooped armfuls of last year's fallen leaves, which he scattered over the slide. But this he gave up as a vain task, and he sent more slides of soil down upon the scene of his labor, until no sign remained of the out-jutting walls of the vein. Next he repaired the broken pipe, gathered his tools together, and started up the trail. He walked slowly, feeling a great weariness, as of a man who had passed through a frightful crisis. He put the tools away, took a great drink of the water that again flowed through the pipes, and sat down on the bench by the open kitchen door. Dede was inside, preparing supper, and the sound of her footsteps gave him a vast content.

He breathed the balmy mountain air in great gulps, like a diver fresh-risen from the sea. And, as he drank in the air, he gazed with all his eyes at the clouds and sky and valley, as if he were drinking in that, too, along with the air.

Dede did not know he had come back, and at times he turned his head and stole glances in at her—at her efficient hands, at the bronze of her brown hair that smoldered with fire when she crossed the path of sunshine that streamed through the window, at the promise of her figure that shot through him a pang most strangely sweet and sweetly dear. He heard her approaching the door, and kept his head turned resolutely toward the valley. And next, he thrilled, as he had always thrilled, when he felt the caressing gentleness of her fingers through his hair.

"I didn't know you were back," she said. "Was it serious?"

"Pretty bad, that slide," he answered, still gazing away and thrilling to her touch. "More serious than I reckoned. But I've got the plan. Do you know what I'm going to do?—I'm going to plant chickadees all over it. They'll hold it. I'll plant them thick as grass, so that even a hungry rabbit can't squeeze between them; and when they get their roots going, nothing in creation will ever move that dirt again."

"Why, is it as bad as that?"

He shook his head.

"Nothing exciting. But I'd sure like to see any blamed old slide get the best of me, that's all. I'm going to seal that slide down so that it'll stay there for a million years. And when the last trump sounds, and Sonoma Mountain and all the other mountains pass into nothingness, that old slide will be still a-standing there, held up by the roots."

He passed his arm around her and pulled her down on his knees.

"Say, little woman, you sure miss a lot by living here on the ranch—music, and theaters, and such things. Don't you ever have a hankering to drop it all and go back?"

So great was his anxiety that he dared not look at her, and when she laughed and shook her head he was aware of a great relief. Also, he noted the undiminished youth that rang through that same old-time boyish laugh of hers.

"Say," he said, with sudden fierceness, "don't you go fooling around that slide until after I get the trees in and rooted. It's mighty dangerous, and I sure can't afford to lose you now."

He drew her lips to his and kissed her hungrily and passionately.

"What a lover!" she said; and pride in him and in her own womanhood was in her voice.

"Look at that, Dede." He removed one encircling arm and swept it in a wide gesture over the valley and the mountains beyond. "The Valley of the Moon—a good name, a good name. Do you know, when I look out over it all, and think of you and of all it means, it kind of makes me ache in the throat, and I have things in my heart I can't find the words to say, and I have a feeling that I can almost understand Browning and those other high-flying poet-fellows. Look at Hood Mountain there, just where the sun's striking. It was down in that crease that we found the spring."

"And that was the night you didn't milk the cows till ten o'clock," she laughed. "And if you keep me here much longer, supper won't be any earlier than it was that night."

Both rose from the bench, and Daylight caught up the milk-pail from the nail by the door. He paused a moment longer to look out over the valley.

"It's sure grand," he said.

"It's sure grand," she echoed, laughing joyously at him and with him and herself and all the world, as she passed in through the door.

And Daylight, like the old man he once had met, himself went down the hill through the fires of sunset with a milkpail on his arm.

THE END.

IS DEAN OF ALL INDIANS

Sitting Elk, Mighty Warrior Who Never Killed White Man, Is Oldest Redman.

Oldest of all Indians in the United States, Sitting Elk, former chief of the Ogallala Sioux, is visiting in Denver, the guest of the white man, against whom he always refused to make war.

For almost a century he has been a leader among his people, but, wiser than other chiefs, he early realized that the red man was doomed and at every opportunity he counseled peace with the palefaces.

He could well afford to do so, for his people knew he was no coward.

"I have never killed a white man," he proudly boasts, "but I have fought many battles, and I have done many brave deeds in my long life of ninety-six years. I was but seventeen when I laydied and killed my first enemy. That was a very brave deed. Since then I have killed many, many enemies."

Sitting Elk is a total abstainer. He smokes cigarettes, but insists he has none of the other bad habits of the white man. He is childless, the last of his line, but he expects to live for many years more—to be hale and hearty long after he has passed the century mark.

Sitting Elk moves tall and stately among his kinsmen, and puffs his pipe with a complacency unruffled by thoughts of any immediate journey to the happy hunting grounds.

Bright of eye, keen of mind, the old warrior dons paint and feathers for his appearance with the younger members of his tribe in the headlong dashes across the amphitheater at the stock yards, and rides with an abandon which defies the spectator to single him from the reckless redskins who have but one-fourth his years to their credit.

Perfect Peace.

Canada Has Sufficient Coal for 6000 Years

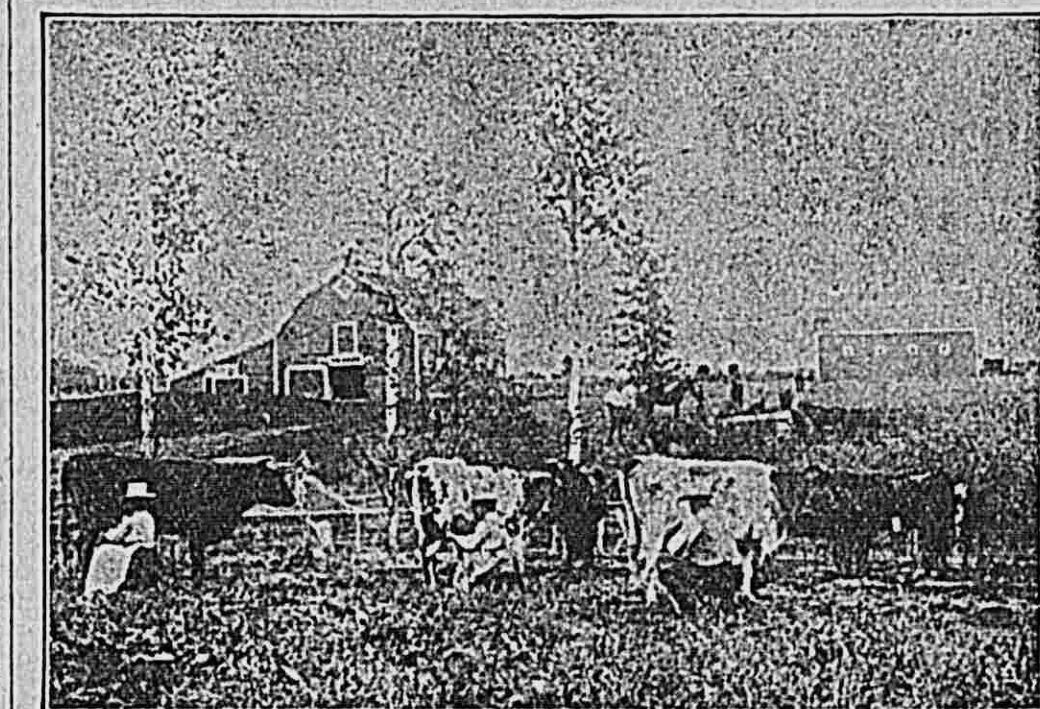

It Has Enough Agricultural Land for the Settling of Millions.

A report dealing with the coal resources of Canada has been issued by the Dominion Department of Mines. The estimates given are only based on what is known. In the western and northern regions, which have been little explored, there may be vast deposits of which nothing whatever is known at present. The officials of the department estimate that of bituminous coal there is in Canada 73½ billion tons; of anthracite 461 million tons; sub-bituminous and lignite over 100 billion tons. The quantity of coal now annually mined in Canada is about 12 million tons. With an estimated quantity of unmixed good coal, of 74 billion tons, it would require 6,166 years to exhaust the supply. If the inferior grades were included, supply would last for 14,575 years. Of course the coal demands of Canada will keep on increasing, but it will be a good many years before the quantity of Canadian coal mined will equal present output of the United States mines. Their annual output is about 500,000,000 tons. At that rate it would take only 145 years to exhaust the estimated Canadian supply of good coal, and about 350 years to get to the end of the total supply. And with the increasing population, made up of about four hundred thousand persons a year (and it looks now as if this number would be reached this year), one hundred and seventy-five thousand the opening up of this rich field of agriculture, and it is a high class of agriculture, carried on by the use of brains, and, where energy has not been endowed, it has become in that splendid air a case of inoculated energy.

The rapid advancement of railways makes the situation easy. Today one may be located thirty miles from one of the many branches of the different systems. A year from now, the whistle of the locomotive and the long train of cars may pass the farm, the elevator is but a short drive from the home, a splendid market is established, and all the advantages of an old settled community are at hand.

The prospects this year from an agricultural standpoint are exceedingly bright, and, relieved of untoward conditions, the farmer is already counting his bank roll, planning for more extensive operations for next year, and figuring on paying out for his farm. He is calculating what the increased value of his holdings, as a result of a successful crop, will add to his assets. Already some fields of wheat have been harvested, barley has been cut, and the yield is above his expectation. In fact, the feeling at the time of writing is that never in the history of any country on the continent has there been such a prospect of a large average crop, all over the three central provinces of Canada, as will be harvest-being an estimate of the immigration from the United States for 1912, the consumption of coal will naturally increase.

The agricultural districts of Canada have now become so well known throughout the world, and the vacant area of splendid land is still so great that it may be expected that the numbers mentioned will increase from year to year, and it will not be many years before the immigration figures will reach the million mark.

It may be asked what is there to warrant this large immigration? With millions of acres of land, capable of producing twenty-five to forty bushels of wheat to the acre; or, if in oats, from forty to ninety, and even as high as a hundred bushels per acre, or the same splendid yields of flax or barley, there is ample inducement to attract these hundreds of thousands who are filling the present agricultural settlements and pushing forward into the newer settlements year by year, and leave room still for the hundreds of thousands who will follow. There remains not only the agricultural wealth of the country, but there are also the social advantages, the home-making privileges, apart altogether from the financial opportunities, there is the life and the energy born from the knowledge that the settler is more than a unit in the upbuilding, in the making of a country that will soon rank amongst the first in the nations of the world. There is no desire on the part of the writer to dwell upon the success that has followed the American settler in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and the coast Province of British Columbia, or to speak of the thousands of individuals who speak the thousands of dollars have made them thousands, but attention must be paid to the fact that these people have done well. They are followed by their families and their friends, who also are doing well.

Where, a few years ago, seemingly only months ago, there was nothing but the open prairie, or if we speak of the more central portions of these provinces, the park districts, there are today well tilled and cultivated farms, large farms, too, and the herds of cattle. Cities and towns are the result of ed this year. The railroads are adding to their already large mileage and have got ready for handling the crop thousands of box cars. The government agents and the railways are making arrangements for from fifty to sixty thousand extra farm hands in order that the crop may be successfully and quickly harvested, business men are laying in larger stocks than usual, real estate men are active, preparing for the rush of business that is sure to follow, and everywhere there is the note of optimism, which seems to be perfectly justifiable.

There is, as has been said, a vast area of the country still open for settlement and homesteading lying in the center north. Speaking of this part a writer, who made the trip when the crop was in its green stage, said:

"Just now, the whole country is a beautiful sight, as it presents itself in full dress of living green, varied in shade, many places elegantly fringed and interspersed with plantings of shrubbery and patches of sweet-scented flowers in rose, yellow, white, pink, scarlet, cardinal and purple. In traveling over the virgin soil, I have seen some of the most charming rolling prairies, sloping hills, deep ravines, mirrored lakes, artistic flower fields, and natural parks that one could wish to behold, and all placed there without the aid of man. The land in general is heavily matted with grass, mixed with vetches and pea vines, nearly up to the knee, and many millions of acres of which are going to waste while beef, pork and mutton are soaring at prices heretofore unknown. The comparatively small acreage under cultivation reminds one of a few small garden patches."

"When we consider the estimated crop of 300,000,000 bushels of wheat for 1912, to be produced on these western prairies from these garden patches, some faint idea can be formed by an imaginative mind as to the immense possibilities and rich heritage of a glorious western Canada."

The estimate of the wheat crop, as made by the writer quoted, is excessive, but with even 250 million bushels, there will be a great deal of satisfaction on the part of the settlers.

Uniforms and Diplomacy.

The gazettes have announced that the emperor of Germany has deigned to name Mon. de Kiderlen-Waechter major of the Seventy-first Thüringian Infantry. To please his august master, the minister sometimes wears his uniform, but in it he gives no illusion of elegance. The other day, to console himself, he said: "I believe my colleague, M. Polcare (the French ambassador) would appear more ridiculous than I do if he were obliged to dress as an artilleryman."

Prince von Buelow, who is colonel of hussars, rode in the grand review at the head of his regiment. Some years ago, at Strasburg, the emperor remarked some squadrons that were moving in zigzags across the field in a manner scarcely correct. They were the hussars of M. von Buelow. "Ach!" cried William II., "mit Buelow immer die krumme wege der diplomatie!" (Oh, with Buelow, it is always the crooked ways of diplomacy.)—Le Cri de Paris.

TWO TERRIBLE CASES OF RINGWORM CURED

By Resinol. Itching and Disfiguring.

Chicago, Ill., June 5, 1912: "My little daughter had a running sore, which I was told was a wet ringworm, on the back of her head from ear to ear, and the other, extending from the waist down. They itched her continually. She had to be carried on a pillow, and nights she could not sleep on account of the sores. She suffered terribly, and would scratch continually. I bought Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and after about two weeks my child was well and hearty." (Signed) Mrs. Emily Skeinik, 2363 Greenham Ave.

Norville, Pa., May 11, 1912: "It is the greatest pleasure for me to testify to the merits of Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment in the treatment of ringworms, from which I suffered for about five weeks until I found a perfect cure in Resinol."

"The trouble began with severe itching, affecting my face and neck. Then burning set in, causing me to lose a lot of sleep. In all, there were a dozen fairly large sores, with many small ones. The sores were very unsightly. I tried several remedies without much relief until a happy thought struck me to try Resinol Soap and Ointment. It made short work of the ringworm." (Signed) E. S. NEW PARTY NAMES FUNK AS LEADER

Bloomington Senator Nominated for Governor by Progressives.

COL. ROOSEVELT IS INDORSED

Recall, Initiative, Direct Election of Senators, Anti-Pass Law, Woman Suffrage Among Planks of Platform Adopted.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Frank H. Funk of Bloomington, state senator, was put forward as the gubernatorial candidate of the new Progressive party Saturday. The new party's convention began at 11 o'clock in the morning and took its final adjournment at 12:15 Sunday morning.

No trouble arose over the question of a third ticket, as every delegate admitted to the convention had signed a pledge to support the ticket.

The other nominees were as follows:

Lieutenant Governor—Judge Dean Franklin, Macomb.

Attorney General—Fletcher Dobyns, Chicago.

Treasurer—Phillip Decker, Murphysboro.

Auditor—Edwin Winter, Danville.

Secretary of State—Edward O. Peterson, Aurora.

For trustees of the University of Illinois B. F. Harris of Champaign, Mrs. Raymond Robins of Chicago and Frederick L. Hatch of Spring Grove, the present president of the board.

The delegates at large are Miss Jane Addams of Chicago, Mary J. Wilmarth of Chicago, C. D. Thomas of Champaign, Frank G. Allen of Moline, Frank H. Funk of Bloomington, Medill McCormick of Chicago, La Verne W. Noyes of Chicago and John F. Bass of Chicago.

Form of Pledge Exacted.

The pledge required of all delegates admitted to the convention read:

"We, the undersigned, hereby subscribe to the calls for the national and state Progressive party conventions and pledge ourselves to support in the election next November the candidates of the Progressive party in state and nation and the platform adopted by the party in state and national convention assembled."

On the recommendation of the credentials committee the convention threw out John P. Conrad of Will county, a delegate who refused to sign the pledge.

David Morrison was seated in place of the ousted delegate.

Dr. Thomas A. Russell, a delegate from the Twentieth ward of Chicago, was elected bodily from the hall when he made objection to the report of the rules committee.

Dr. John Boyle of Springfield was forcibly ejected from the convention hall after creating a disturbance on the speakers' platform. Attempts on the part of his friends to quiet him were in vain and he was finally put out by the police.

Merriam Sounds Keynote.

The keynote of the convention and of the campaign to be conducted by the new party in Illinois was sounded by Charles E. Merriam, the temporary chairman. He outlined a program of reform legislation and urged the need of the third party state ticket.

At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Merriam read a telegram from Colonel Roosevelt, addressed to Medill McCormick.

The Roosevelt telegram follows:

"Through you I wish to express all good wishes to the Illinois Progressives in convention assembled. I wish also to congratulate the Illinois Progressives on their stand for a third ticket."

"This is the course that I am most happy to say has been decided upon in Indiana, Michigan and Missouri, and while of course there are certain states where the conditions render it unnecessary, I am frankly convinced that it is the course that must normally be followed and certainly in all cases unless there is a ticket already in the field which the Progressives are willing to indorse, and the nominees on which are openly and without equivocation in favor of the Progressive electoral ticket."

"We are engaged in a great movement. It is only through the new Progressive party that we can hope to get our people really to face the vital issues of today. The two old party machines are both corrupt and incompetent and we cannot hope to secure from them any sincere and resolute attempt to solve the problems most pressing for solution by our people."

"The fight is clear cut. I believe we shall be able to arouse the people so that they will know that this is their fight, and if we can do so, success is certain—not merely ultimately—but at once."

Roosevelt is indorsed.

Besides naming a third ticket the convention indorsed Roosevelt for president, adopted a Roosevelt platform, nominated twenty-nine candidates for presidential electors, named fifty-eight delegates to the national convention and elected a new state committee.

C. R. Pondarvis of Henderson county was temporary secretary of the convention, Arthur L. Curvey of Chicago was permanent chairman and John L. Hamilton of Hoopston was permanent secretary. Charles Ringer asked as temporary and permanent sergeant-at-arms.

The convention occupied the entire day. Orchestra hall was filled to the topmost gallery. The delegates numbered 1,100. More than 1,000 spectators were in attendance.

Miss Jane Addams and other women prominent in civic affairs occupied boxes.

Cheers for the Colonel.

Mention of Theodore Roosevelt's name invariably aroused cheers and applause. At the opening of the convention the former president was cheered for seven minutes.

The signal for applause for Colonel Roosevelt was given when two United States flags were drawn aside at the back of the stage, revealing a photograph of the former president bordered by red, white and blue lights.

The lights in other parts of the hall were turned out while the demonstration continued. Delegation standards were waved aloft. Bandanna handkerchiefs, the emblem of the new party, were much in evidence.

Funk's Vote Unanimous.

Senator Funk's nomination was made by acclamation, although the name of Robert Eaton of Will county also was presented before the convention.

The roll was called, but when DeKalb county was reached Captain W. H. Fram of Will county withdrew the name of Mr. Eaton and moved that the nomination of Senator Funk be made unanimous. The motion was carried amid great applause.

When the roll call was stopped Funk had received 479 votes, while Eaton had only 62.

The name of Senator Funk was placed before the convention by B. O. Aylesworth of Cass county. Seconding speeches were made by Senator Walter Clyde Jones of Chicago and Senator E. D. Telford of Marion county.

Mr. Eaton was nominated by Capt. William H. Frame. Rev. Duncan C. Miller seconded the nomination.

After the vote Senator Funk was escorted to the platform and made a brief speech of acceptance.

Platform of New Party.

The platform adopted by the convention defines at the outset the object of the new party.

"The national Progressive party," it declares, "is the expression of the determination of the people to take back their government into their own hands. No close observer of industrial, social and political conditions in Illinois can doubt the impelling necessity for the formation in this state of such a party."

Republican and Democratic bosses have treated the will of the party with contempt for years, the platform declares.

The principal reforms to which the new party pledges itself are:

The initiative, referendum and recall.

Changes in judicial procedure to insure the speedy administration of justice.

The short ballot.

Direct election of United States senators.

A corrupt practices act.

An anti-pass law and an anti-frank law.

Greater latitude in amending the state constitution.

One cannot improve on nature. The universal is not to be corrected by the partial.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Mrs. Lena Gaggin is visiting her sister Mrs. Schwartz at Evanston the last of the week.

Mrs. Ray L. Hubbard and children of Libertyville are visiting a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tiffany.

So far the weather man has been handing us some rather cool August days. The average temperature of the first seven days of this month is 61, in 1911 it was 74, and in 1910, 70.

July 23 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hoskins, 5245 N. Sawyer ave., Chicago, was held a very pleasant family reunion which was very much enjoyed by all present. The day was spent in pleasant converse and the smiling faces of host and hostess showed the pleasure with which they entertained those present who were: Mrs. L. A. Hendee and Miss Hendee, Mr. and Mrs. W. Streal, Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Hoskins of Emporia, Kansas, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Quinn and son of Waukegan, Misses Luella and Harriet Hoskins and Mrs. Sam Straghan of Antioch.

Archiepiscopal Feast.

A correspondent sends us the material for a dinner given by the Archbishop of York in 1468: Three hundred quarters of wheat, 330 tons of ale, 104 tons of wine, 1 pipe of spiced wine, 80 fat oxen, 6 wild bulls, 1,000 sheep, 3,000 hogs, 300 calves, 3,000 geese, 3,000 capons, 300 pigs, 100 peacocks, 200 cranes, 200 kids, 2,000 chickens, 4,000 pigeons, 4,000 rabbits, 204 bittern, 4,000 ducks, 400 herons, 200 pheasants, 500 partridges, 4,000 woodcocks, 400 plovers, 100 curlew, 100 quails, 100 egrets, 200 roes, 400 bucks, 5,500 venison pasties, 5,000 dishes of jelly, 6,000 custards, 300 pilke, 300 bream, 8 seals, 4 porpoises and 400 turts. There were 1,000 servants, 62 cooks and 515 scullions. Our correspondent informs us that his authority does not state in what circumstances the dinner was given, or how many guests assembled. Possibly some reader may be able to throw light on the subject.—London Globe.

Left Auntie Pondering.

Ernest is constantly asking his indulgent aunt for pennies, which are never refused. She recently said to him: "Now, Ernest, you may ask aunt for a penny whenever you want one, but you won't ask other people for one, will you?" "Oh, no," he answered with an air of letting his relatives off easy. "I will ask other people for a nickel."

Daily Thought.

Religious Work in United States.

Actively engaged in the work of saving souls in the United States are 146 distinct denominations. This does not include the followers of Confucius, Buddha, Mohammed, Shintoism and other sects in the field long before Christianity got a foothold in this world.

Embarrassing Hospitality.

The Ifugaos are very friendly, and are continually offering gifts of chicken and eggs. They have a very strong drink on the order of tapul, which they bring forth on all occasions, and the etiquette of the country requires that one should take a drink. The continued invitation to drink this "congcong" was the most disagreeable part of the trip through their country.—Manila Times.

The Lamp of Life.

The comparison of human life to the burning and going out of a lamp was familiar with Latin authors, as we know by the term senes decrepiti. Plutarch explains the origin of this metaphor thus: The ancients never extinguished their lamps, but suffered them to go out of their own accord—that is, by the last crackle. Hence a lamp just about to expire was said decrepitare, to cease to crackle. Hence, metaphorically, persons on the verge of the grave were called decrepit men.

The Ear-Marks.

Hans was summoned to court to identify a stolen hog. On being asked if the hog had any ear-marks, he replied: "The only ear-marks dat I saw was dat his tail was cut off."

An Easy Way to Stop a Serious Waste

CAN you imagine the average housewife of the corn belt refusing to collect eggs because they were not worth as much as the hens? Yet in this same corn belt many corn growers waste every year almost as large a part of the corn crop as eggs are of the poultry business. The feeding value of corn stover, cut at the right time and properly cured, is about one-third of the total crop. If you have been letting this good fodder go to waste you should know that there is an easy way to save it. That way is to use an

I H C Corn Binder

Deering, McCormick, Milwaukee, or Osborne

The difficulty has been to harvest the corn at the right time, and quickly enough to retain all the good feeding value of the stalks and leaves. You can't always get extra help to harvest it quickly with corn knives. With an I H C corn binder you can harvest forty acres in seven days from the time the ears begin to glaze. Then, when the whole crop is run through an I H C husker and shredder—either Deering, McCormick, or Plano—you have secured as nearly all of your corn crop as could be harvested. Your corn is husked clean and you have besides a large quantity of nutritious roughage for the winter feeding of your stock. Also, there is no better, quicker, or cheaper way of cutting corn for ensilage than with an I H C corn binder.

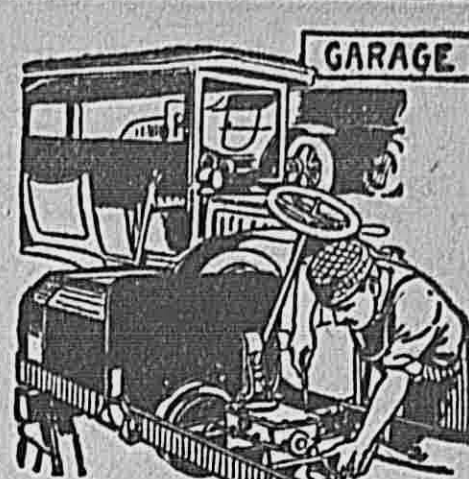

See the I H C local dealer and have him show an I H C corn binder. He will give you full information and supply you with catalogues, or write

NOVELIST OF THE FAR NORTH

Eskimo Woman Who Writes Books Discovered by Party of American Scientists.

The first Eskimo novelist has been discovered by a party of American scientists who spent last summer in Labrador. She lives at Cape Chudleigh, her name is Ningink and she is 16 years old—a mature age among her people. As the Eskimo language contains only 300 words the young authoress must sometimes have trouble to express her thoughts with the limited vocabulary at her command, but she reads and writes as fluently as any American girl of the same age. At first she wrote on skins with sharpened bones dipped in the blood of a fish or a seal, but a missionary gave her a bundle of pencils and a bale of brown paper, and Ningink's igloo is now piled at one end with many rolls of MSS, neatly tied with strips of sealskin. Her house is not made of skins or snow blocks, like most of the surrounding Eskimo habitations, but is constructed of hundreds of bones of seals and large fishes, and is considered a palace by the villagers, who regard her with great respect and admiration. Her lance is the tallest man at the Cape, being five and one-half feet, a remarkable height for an Eskimo. He is an artist, and carves bracelets, rings, necklaces and figures of men and animals from bone and ivory with much skill and delicacy.

Ningink's stories relate mostly to the seal, the fish, the white bear and to adventures of the chase. Her most ambitious effort tells how the sun took pity on another world that had lost its sun and now divides his light between the earth and the dark world, shining half a year on each. This tale contains nearly 3,000 words and is a great favorite with the village people, who love to gather in Ningink's igloo and listen to her "books," which she reads in a high sing-song voice. Whenever she writes a new story she invites all her friends to come and hear it, and the occasion is made one of great feasting and rejoicing.

Ballooning Magnifies the Sound.
George M. Myers, president of the Priests of Pallas festival, is also president of the Kansas City Aero club. The club's pilot has taken him ballooning three times. The first trip Myers learned smoking is taboo in gas bags, the second time he acquired a painful sunburn and on the third flight he discovered that one must not always believe what he hears. "Listen to that cow bellowing," he remarked to his companion, at an altitude of a thousand feet. His companion tried, but failed to hear anything that resembled such a sound. "There she goes again," Myers persisted. "Meow, meow," came the plaintive whine of a farmer's cat.—Kansas City Star.

Improvement.
A young Brooklyn woman, who has the honor of being the strongest girl at her college, said the other day of an affected type of culture: "Such culture is superficial. It reminds me of Cornelius Husk. "Corn Husk, after his son's graduation from Harvard, gave the lad a trip to Europe. Afterward a friend asked the old man: "Well, did the tour improve young Corny?" "It certainly did," was the reply. He says "I fancy for 'I guess' now, and 'blouse' for 'shirtwaist,' 'boots' for 'shoes' 'nut' for 'dude,' 'bowler' for 'derby' and 'I say' for 'hey.'"

Sure of Her.
"Would you permit your wife to wear a harem skirt?" "Oh, yes, if she wished to wear one." "I thought you had more respect for her than that." "I have respect for her. That's why I say I would permit her to wear a harem skirt if she wished to do so. I am sure she would never put one on, if it is permissible to refer to a harem skirt as 'one.' " "You never can tell." "Oh, yes, I can. In this case I'm sure of her." "Why do you feel so confident?" "Well, I suppose, I ought not to tell you, but I will. Don't let it go any further. My wife is bow-legged."—Chicago Record Herald.

Irish Wit.
An Englishman in Dublin was asked by an Irish cab driver if he wished to ride through the city. "No," replied the Englishman; "I am able to walk." "Ah, well," remarked the Jehu, "may your honor long be able, but seldom willing."

Wanted Particulars.
Patience—Been to Germany, have you? Patrice—Oh, yes. "Did you come across any good links while there?" "Golf or sausage?"

Disappointing.
She, tenderly and expectantly: "What's the nearest thing to your heart, Joe?" He—I don't know, Kid, whether it's my liver, or my spleen, but I'll ask the doctor and let you know.

TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN BEVERIDGE

NATIONAL PROGRESSIVE PARTY IS LAUNCHED IN CHICAGO

Colonel Roosevelt Receives Wild Demonstration When He Appears to Make Speech—Former Senator Beveridge Is Chosen Temporary Chairman and Sounds Keynote.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Theodore Roosevelt was given one of the greatest demonstrations in the history of political conventions when he appeared at the Coliseum today to address the delegates to the national Progressive party. When he arrived on the platform shortly after the convention was called to order at noon a wave of cheering surged through the vast assemblage that developed into a riot of enthusiastic noise. And when he arose to make his speech, after a brief introduction by Temporary Chairman Beveridge, he was given another demonstration.

The announcement that the colonel would address the convention in response to the invitation unanimously extended to him yesterday, drew a tremendous crowd to the Coliseum, and long before Chairman Beveridge called the convention to order there was not a vacant seat in the hall.

Colonel Roosevelt's speech was an exposition of the policies upon which the new party would appeal to the voters in the coming campaign.

Beveridge Is Chairman.
The new national Progressive party came into official being in Chicago yesterday.

The plans and purposes were outlined by former United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana in his speech as temporary chairman of the convention.

"We propose," said Mr. Beveridge, "to pass prosperity around, to make human living easier, to free the hands of honest business, to make commerce steady, to preserve the dignity of womanhood and to preserve childhood."

It was an eloquent and forceful address, the speech of the temporary chairman.

Some of Mr. Beveridge's striking sentences were:

Striking Sentences.
"The warfare to destroy big business is both foolish and wicked."
"The people are tired of the mock battle with criminal capital."
"Neither Democrats nor Republicans can serve us from our course; we are free of both and fear neither."
"The tariff must be taken out of politics."

There was born at the same time as the new party a new cheer. It was the call of the bull moose. It was heard for the first time yesterday. It is a weird, crooning, penetrating cry, and it seems destined before the Progressives have adjourned to take the place of the old familiar cheer and yell.

Mr. Beveridge's peroration was a great effort and at the conclusion of his speech the audience went wild. He cheered for several minutes and then joined in singing "America."

Enthusiasm was one of the most conspicuous and tangible things on exhibition at the Coliseum. It ran almost the whole gamut of human emotions.

The exact hour of the birth of the Progressive babe was 12:45 o'clock. At that hour United States Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana rapped for order and began his opening speech.

Cheers Interrupt Speaker.
It was an impressive moment. Senator Dixon seemed to realize it. The delegates and spectators themselves, who but a moment before, had been cheering themselves hoarse, suddenly became quiet. They sat quite still. The speaker's voice carried far. Twice only was he interrupted, and one of these times was when an irrepressible in the gallery called for "Three cheers for Teddy." Three cheers were given and then three times three.

The scenes attending the birth of the new party were at once impressive and spectacular.

The Coliseum was filled comfortably. It was not crowded, probably there were 8,000 persons in the big auditorium when Senator Dixon in his capacity as chairman of the Progressive party's provisional national committee, opened the proceedings. Viewed from the platform the audience seemed to be a sea of red and white.

There were American flags of various sizes and shapes, but for once the good old bandanna outshone "Old Glory." There were bandannas everywhere. The delegates wore them on their heads, around their necks, some used them as belts; some wore them in the places handkerchiefs usually are carried; women, too, wore them, some as bands on their summery hats, others as sashes. The bandannas fluttered and waved and added a vivid touch of color to the animating and animated scene.

Opened by Dixon.
"Ladies and gentlemen," said Senator Dixon, "the convention will now come to order. Twenty-eight days ago in the city of New York it was decided that there should be a national political alignment in these United States. Then and there was issued a call for a convention to take up the subject and try to accomplish an alignment of political parties."

"In the past twenty-eight days the nation has seen evolution in its democracy, a new alignment in political parties. Now, in four weeks the nation has seen a political convention of a new party with the largest number of delegates ever seen at a political convention in this country. It has passed the academic discussion of principle, and before the sun sets this afternoon a new milestone will have been erected in the political history of this country—a new party will have been born that will know no north, no south, no east, no west, and no sectional lines of any kind."

While Dixon was speaking some one shouted: "Hurrah for Teddy," and for two or three minutes delegates indulged in a shouting bee.

Finally Dixon resumed, and introduced O. K. Davis, who read the call for the convention.

Senator Dixon resumed the stand after the call had been read. He called on Rev. T. F. Dornblaser, pastor of the Grace English Lutheran church of Chicago, to pronounce the invocation. The delegates and visitors rose while the prayer was offered.

Prays for a New Joshua.
In the prayer Doctor Dornblaser thanked the Almighty for the independence of the nation. He said perhaps the American spirit has become somewhat vainglorious and boastful and asked forgiveness. He quoted the prayer of King David as most appropriate for the occasion. He said that heaven had been with the nation in past crises and that it will be with the nation in the crisis he saw coming. With this hope he uttered a plea for divine inspiration that the delegates might do their duty in displacing parties that have no higher ambition than to serve self.

"Thou God of infinite resources," he said, "give us another Joshua—a man who can lead us to speedy and ultimate victory."

Senator Dixon then announced that ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana had been selected as temporary chairman of the convention.

Governor Johnson of California, Governor Vesey of South Dakota, Governor Carey of Wyoming and Funk of Illinois escorted Beveridge to the platform.

Beveridge was greeted with a thunder of applause as he appeared.

Beveridge Is Cheered.

As the ex-senator reached the climax of his speech applause became more and more frequent. When he spoke of the new party as enlisting for war he was cheered again and again.

He finished his speech at 3:12 and the convention gave him a tremendous ovation. The delegates stood on their chairs cheering and waving their bandannas.

While the applause was still at its height the band swung into "The Star Spangled Banner." At its close there was another outburst of cheers.

The clerks shouted through a big megaphone asking the band to play "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," but there was too much noise and they got switched into another air—"The Battle Cry of Freedom."

Finally, despairing of the megaphone method, the song was started from the platform, then the leader "wised up" and directed the efforts of his musicians into the right direction.

The audience sang verse after verse, and the band, waiting a little while each time, took its "cue" and went ahead. Most of the time the band was a few laps behind. But the delegates didn't care. They went right on singing, and they sang with a will.

After the singing had concluded Beveridge asked the clerk to read the roll of temporary officers.

Temporary Officers Named.

Temporary officers of the convention, as finally announced, were as follows:

Temporary chairman—Albert J. Beveridge.

General secretary—O. K. Davis, Washington, D. C.

Chief assistant secretary—Wilson Brooks, Chicago.

Assistant secretaries—William Allen White, Emporia, Kan.; Judson C. Weliver, Washington, D. C.; John Callan O'Loughlin, Chicago; George E. Miller, Detroit; Angus McSweeney, Philadelphia; E. A. Dickson, Los Angeles;

Senator Dixon.

Harry J. Haskell, Kansas City, Mo.; Edward B. Clark, Chicago; C. P. Connolly, New York city; George Odell, New York city; Charles C. Hart, Spokane, Wash.

Sergeant-at-arms—Col. Chauncey Dewey of Illinois.

Assistant chief sergeant-at-arms—Capt. Granville Portesque.

Official reporter—G. Russell Leonard.

Reading clerks—Henry F. Cochems, Milwaukee, Wis.; J. H. Gregory, Jr., Key West, Fla.

Ask Roosevelt to Speak.

Just before the convention adjourned a motion made by James R. Garfield to invite Colonel Roosevelt to address the convention at noon today was adopted. The following committee was appointed to wait on the colonel:

Delegates Van Valkenburg, Pennsylvania; Straus, New York; Fort, New Jersey; Parker, Georgia; Polndexter, Washington; Dawson, West Virginia; Williams, North Carolina; Watkins, Michigan; Hellenburg, Montana; Powell, California; Butler, Maryland; Findlay, California, and Stevens, Iowa.

Proposed Changes in Rules.

Reforms in the rules of conventions are proposed. They are patterned after recommendations the Roosevelt men made to the Republican convention in an effort to get control of a majority of the delegates.

One new rule proposed stipulates that a contested delegate shall not be permitted to participate in any of the deliberations until the convention has passed upon credentials. Under the old rules contested delegates have been allowed to vote upon the temporary roll of the convention.

Another rule provides that national committeemen elected by direct primaries shall take office prior to the convention instead of after. This latter provision was placed in the Democratic rules at Baltimore by William J. Bryan.

FEARS DEATH CHAIR

"DAGO FRANK," ALLEGED ROSENTHAL SLAYER, TO CONFESS.

Becker's Attorney Admits He Secured Affidavit From Rose, Taken After Murder.

New York, Aug. 2.—"Dago Frank" Cirofio, one of the four men wanted for the killing of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, and who was identified by three men as being one who fired at Rosenthal from the gray murder automobile, has turned state's evidence. He sent word to District Attorney Whitman that he was willing to tell all he knew about the murder if he was saved from the electric chair.

Following fast on the confession of Cirofio, though not directly connected with it, John W. Hart, attorney for Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, accused of the murder of Rosenthal, was brought before Judge Mulqueen and ordered to answer questions propounded to him by the district attorney before the grand jury. Hart previously refused to answer these questions, but when taken a second time before the inquisitorial body, taken more freely, although he prefaced almost every statement with a protest.

Hart admitted that he had visited "Jack" Rose, one of the men who has confessed, while the latter was in hiding following the gambler's murder.

MRS. DAISY GRACE IS FREED

Woman Accused of Shooting Husband Found Not Guilty by the Jury.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 5.—"God bless you, gentlemen," cried Mrs. Daisy Ulrich Ople Grace here Friday when the jury found her not guilty of the charge of shooting her husband.

"I feel like kissing and hugging you all," she said to the jurors. "I trusted you all the time. I knew you would not believe what they said about me." Followed by a cheering throng, Mrs. Grace soon left the courtroom and went to the office of her attorneys. The verdict was generally expected. It is conceded that the state failed to sustain the charge that Mrs. Grace had drugged and shot her husband and locked him in to die in order to get $25,000 insurance on his life.

Grace was not in court. He was taken back to his home in Newnan and there heard of the verdict.

"I don't care what the jury said," declared the paralyzed husband. "She's as guilty as hell and she knows it."

Grace says he will sue for divorce.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES

Washington, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Taft returned to Washington from the summer White House at Beverly so as to be present when formal notification is made to President Taft on Thursday that he has been nominated by the Republican party as its candidate for president.

Washington, Aug. 2.—After considering protests from France, the treasury department has practically decided to adhere to its intention of abrogating September 1 the agreement between the United States and the Limoges chamber of commerce governing the appraisement of china and pottery from France.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Another emergency appropriation resolution to provide funds for running the government until congress passes the general appropriation bills is being prepared by legislators to be introduced soon.

ARCHBALD CASE DECEMBER 3

Immediate Trial Desired by House Is Refused by Senate After an Executive Session.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The trial of Judge Robert W. Archbald of the United States commerce court on impeachment proceedings brought by the house of representatives was set by the senate Saturday to open Tuesday, December 3, the second day of the next regular session of congress.

The house managers, who brought charges of misconduct against Judge Archbald, demanded that the trial open Wednesday, August 7. Judge Archbald through his attorney, A. B. Worthington, presented to the senate a formal request that it be deferred until October 15 on the ground that his case could not be prepared before that time. After two hours in executive session, the senate, by a vote of 44 to 19, determined upon the postponement.

Commerce Court Is Hit.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Under the conference measure of Friday the commerce court is abolished, and a prohibition is made against appointment of more judges until the number of circuit judges recedes to twenty-nine.

Atlantic Mail Delayed by Strike.

Louise, Aug. 6.—Week end mails from America are being delayed by the strike of the stokers on the American liners. Every ship leaving New York with a green crew has been unable to keep to her schedule.

Ice Trust Files Big Mortgage.

Washington, Aug. 2.—A $6,000,000 mortgage to secure an issue of bonds for that sum was filed here on last Wednesday by the American ice company, popularly known as the ice trust.

FAMILY RUNT

Kansas Man Says Coffee Made Him That.

"Coffee has been used in our family of eleven—father, mother, five sons and four daughters—for thirty years. I am the eldest of the boys and have always been considered the runt of the family and a coffee totter."

"I continued to drink it for years until I grew to be a man, and then I found I had stomach trouble, nervous headaches, poor circulation, was unable to do a full day's work, took medicine for this, that and the other thing, without the least benefit. In fact I only weighed 116 when I was 28."

"Then I changed from coffee to Postum, being the first one in our family to do so. I noticed, as did the rest of the family, that I was surely gaining strength and flesh. Shortly after I was visiting my cousin who said, 'You look so much better—you're getting fat.'"

"At breakfast his wife passed me a cup of coffee, as she knew I was always such a coffee drinker, but I said, 'No, thank you.' " "What! said my cousin, 'you quit coffee? What do you drink?' " "Postum," I said, "or water, and I am well." They did not know what Postum was, but my cousin had stomach trouble and could not sleep at night from drinking coffee three times a day. He was glad to learn about Postum, but said he never knew coffee would hurt anyone." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"After understanding my condition and how I got well, he knew what to do for himself. He discovered that coffee was the cause of his trouble as he never used tobacco or anything else of the kind. You should see the change in him now. We both believe that if persons who suffer from coffee drinking would stop and use Postum they could build back to health and happiness." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Foxes Not Easy Prey.
Foxes often kill buzzards and the smaller hawks that have been impelled to attack them through hunger. They have mainly done this by dragging the birds through branches and brushwood; for they usually have their talons deeply imbedded in their fatigued victim, and are unable to let them go.

No Chance for Him.
"There!" said the ambitious young man when he had finished his great epic, "that's done. Now all that is necessary is to find a publisher and cause the public to become interested in me. Confound it! I have no friend whose wife would be willing to cause a commotion by eloping with me."

What He Took.
"Going down the river to spend Sunday with the folks," panted the excited week-end jaunter, as he swung aboard a moving car. "No, I don't need any luggage; all I take for these week-end excursions is just a night-brush and a tooth-gown."

Friendship That Is Worthy.
Oh the comfort—the inexpressible comfort of feeling safe with a person—having neither to weigh thoughts nor measure words, but pouring them all right out just as they are, chaff and grain together, certain that a faithful hand will take and sift them, keep what is worth keeping and with a breath of kindness blow the rest away.—Dinah Mulock.

Way of the Truly Great.
It is easy in this world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after one's own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

Prove and Know.
I pray you with all earnestness to prove, and know within your hearts, that all things are possible for those who believe in the possibilities and who determine that, for their part, they will make every day's work contribute to them.—John Ruskin.

Made His Demands Definite.
The "minimum wage" idea appeals to one English boy who was asked the other day by his teacher to write, as the daily composition, a letter to his father asking for an increase in pocket money. The boy set forth the need of large funds, and ended with a courteous demand for a "minimum sum of money." One of the reasons for the demand was that the boy did not get enough taffy to eat and had no papers to read.

To Pack a Trunk.
Take a couple of horses the height of a chair; they take up little space in a storeroom. Use them to set a trunk on when packing it. It will save your wife many a backache and save you or whoever removes it after it is packed, from lifting it up from the floor.

SCIENTISTS MAKE NEW DISCOVERY

A Process Has been Discovered For Refining and Producing Copper

LAKE CO. MEN AT THE HEAD

Demonstration Has Been Held at Waukegan, and Method is Said to be Best of Modern Times

Business men and scientists of Chicago, the North Shore and Waukegan gathered last week at the office of Dr. George Doerbecker on Washington street, Waukegan, and for the first time in the history of the scientific world, pure and refined copper was produced by mechanical treatment alone, of the raw copper.

Lake County men are at the head of the movement, which is the result of research for many years in the copper fields of Guatemala, Central America by H. N. Wilcox and J. E. Boland. The latter was a contractor in Waukegan some twenty years ago and Mr. Wilcox was born in the county near Libertyville.

The production of copper paint and bronze, without smelting the ore, is the secret of their process, which will in their opinion revolutionize the entire copper industry of the world.

The two men, Mr. Wilcox and Mr. Boland have just returned from Mexico. Captured by the Mexican rebels they passed themselves off as Red Cross doctors and they were released.

Some twenty years ago the two men left Waukegan for the copper fields of South and Central America. All this time they had been experimenting, trying their process again and again, until they were convinced that they had it ready to give to the scientific world.

Dr. Doerbecker, dentist, was one of the original party, who was to have gone to South America with the Lake County men. But circumstances arose whereby he was forced to remain at home. Even then the men, now gray, but then mere youths had no idea of what they were going to do.

"When we make our discovery we will come to you, and you shall be the first to see the process." True to their promise Wilcox and Boland came to Waukegan last week and for the first time the process was given a trial.

Raw copper ore, taken from their mine in Central America was first produced—a mere stone. The ore was put into a crusher and pulverized next by steam it was liquified.

The liquid copper is then charged with elastic fluids after which it passes through a copper liberator, which is constructed on the plan of a water boiler.

This boiler is heated by passing exhaust steam into the steam chamber to a temperature of 208 degrees F. H., and finally brought to 280 degrees F. H., with live steam. Under this temperature, combine with the pressure of 110 pounds to the square inch, 50 per cent of the copper contents is liberated. The remaining 50 per cent is the working basis for these operations and remains in the system. The fact that the heat expands and drives out the elastic fluids from the liquid, creates the 110 pounds to the square inch and causes the copper to be liberated. The liberated copper is removed from the boiler and passes on the casting department to be put into ingots ready for the market.

Scientists, who had come in the role of "Doubting Thomases" marveled at this discovery, which is said by the men to be among the best of modern times.

The process is fully protected by United States and foreign patents.

Homesickness Spoils Photographs.

Aunt Maria thought, and so did her relatives in the big city, that the photographer was unpardonably discourteous. For three successive days he refused to take Aunt Maria's photograph. On the fourth day he told why.

"In justice to her," he said, "I do not want to take her pictures now. She is too homesick. Most out-of-town people want to be photographed while in the city. If they are longing for home I put them off with one excuse or another until the homesickness wears off."

"If you want your aunt's pictures to turn out well, just hunt up some one from her home town who happens to be visiting here at present and bring him here so she will meet him unexpectedly. The meeting will put sparkle and animation into her face, and next time when he will be disappointed with the photographs."

Preserved by Electricity.
It is noted that the top strands of a wire fence are more apt to rust than those which pass through the dew laden grass. A possible explanation has been offered in the fact that the wires running close to the ground are slightly electrified.

Bacteria Not Necessary to Life.
Though bacteria of many kinds live in most animals, a French experimenter has disproven the theory that they are essential to life. It was claimed that a chicken lived absolutely free from micro-organisms, and growth and development went on as usual.

Reduction in the cost of Residence

Lighting

Beginning September 1st, 1912, this Company will offer to its resident customers the privilege of using its service for lighting at the Maximum Demand rate.

Under this system electricity used for residence lighting will be fourteen and one-half cents (14 1/2 cents) per kilowatt hour for the first thirty hours use of the maximum number of kilowatt hours taken at any one time during the month. The rate charge for all remaining kilowatt hours will be eight cents (8c).

A discount for prompt payment of one cent per kilowatt hour on the customer's total consumption of electricity will be allowed by the Company on all bills paid at the proper office or agency, within ten (10) days after their dates by him.

Customers having installation of less than five kilowatts (that is less than 100 lamps of fifty watts each) will have their maximum demand determined by fixed per centage of their installation.

This rate will effect an average reduction in residential lighting bills of 15 per cent.
